

Fiber Optic Cable Bundling and Hanging Machine

Article Overview

Fiber optic cable bundling and hanging machines automate the pre-bundling, stranding, and high-altitude installation of fiber optic cables, improving efficiency, precision, and safety.

Fiber Bundling Machines

Fiber bundling machines are designed to pre-bundle individual glass fibers gently and efficiently before final cable production. For example, KURRE Systems' next-generation fiber bundle machine can handle ultra-fine fibers with diameters from 0.2 to 1.2 mm at speeds up to 3,000 revolutions per minute, while maintaining a sensitive tensile force range of 0.2 to 4 Newtons . These machines use a multi-payoff unit to feed multiple fibers simultaneously to a binder yarn spinner, which wraps a binder thread around the fibers to reduce mechanical stress and provide color-coded identification for easier processing . A traversing winder gently coils the bundled fibers, and an accumulator ensures continuous processing with minimal scrap . Rosendahl Nextrom offers complete fiber optic cable production solutions, including loose tube production, tight buffering, and SZ stranding. Their systems provide low stranding tension fluctuation, accurate lay length, and constant binding tension, suitable for both indoor and outdoor fiber optic cables . Integrated monitoring systems allow real-time assessment of fiber length and quality, reducing scrap and improving production efficiency .
