

Price of 200-meter optical cable

Article Overview

The price of 200 meters of fiber optic cable typically ranges from $28 to $45 for standard outdoor FTTH drop cables, with higher-end or specialized cables costing more.

Typical Pricing

- Outdoor FTTH drop cables (dual-core, armored, LC/SC connectors): $28-$45 for 200 meters, depending on brand and connector type (AliExpress) .
- Multimode duplex fiber optic patch cables (62.5/125 μm , LC to LC): Available on Amazon, prices vary by quality and vendor, generally in a similar range for 200 meters .
- High-count backbone cables or specialized indoor/outdoor cables: Can cost significantly more, up to $6 per foot for 288-strand cables, which would translate to thousands of dollars for 200 meters (656 feet) .

Factors Affecting Price

- Fiber Type: Single-mode fiber is generally cheaper per foot ($0.10-$0.50) than multimode ($0.30-$1.00) .
- Strand Count: More strands increase cost; a 12-strand cable is around $0.50 per foot, while a 24-strand cable can reach $1.00 per foot .
- Cable Construction: Armored or plenum-rated cables for harsh environments cost more ($0.50-$5 per foot) .
- Connectors and Pre-Termination: Factory-terminated cables with LC, SC, or other connectors are more expensive than bulk cable .
