

Which brands of PoE switches are available

Article Overview

Popular PoE switch brands include Cisco, Aruba, TP-Link, NETGEAR, and Ubiquiti, each offering a range of models for different network needs.

Leading PoE Switch Brands

- Cisco – Known for enterprise-grade reliability and advanced features, Cisco PoE switches are widely used in large businesses and data centers. They offer managed switches with high PoE budgets and support for VLANs, QoS, and cloud management .
- Aruba (Instant On 1930 series) – Ideal for small to medium businesses, Aruba switches provide cloud-based management, intelligent power allocation, and cost-effective deployment compared to traditional enterprise switches .
- TP-Link – Offers a variety of unmanaged and managed PoE switches suitable for home, small office, and medium business networks. Popular models include the TL-SG1005P and TL-SG108, which feature fanless designs, plug-and-play setup, and reliable PoE delivery .
- NETGEAR – Provides both unmanaged and smart PoE switches, such as the GS308EP, which are praised for silent operation, easy setup, and compatibility with IP cameras, VoIP phones, and access points .
- Ubiquiti – Known for UniFi switches, Ubiquiti offers managed PoE solutions with centralized network control, ideal for wireless access points and surveillance systems in both small and large deployments .
